Wife—Here's a book you ought to read, my dear.

Husband—What's the name of it?
Wife—"The Golden Wedding." During their fifty years of wedded life the husband and wife never spoke an unkind word to each other. It's a wonderful story.

Husband—It certainly must be. But then you know I don't care for fiction.—Chicago News.

The method of handling milk in a frozen condition is gaining great popularity in northern Europe. There are several companies in Copenhagen now engaged in the shipments of milk in this shape. The milk is received from distant farms, where it has been frozen in solid blocks after having been subjected to a process of Pasteurization. Upon its arrival it is thawed out with a constant agitation so as to distribute the cream evenly, and then is placed in bottles, sealed, stamped and delivered to the consumers. It will be readily seen that milk which has been Pasteurized first and then frozen is in the best possible condition for keeping.
